The Oregonian

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 13, 1859.

The people of the United States, and the people of Central America, have done a general attention away from the little unimportance on our own continent which has just resulted in a declaration of war, and promises to lead to important results. For sometime past President Barrios of Guatemala has been ambitious of becoming the president of the United States of Central America. He has been progressing so quietly that Americans have hardly realized the gravity of the situation until the news of yesterday, stating that war had been declared by San Salvador against Guatemala. It seems that President Barrios, taking advantage of the fact that he was ruler over the largest and most populous of the two Central American republics, decided to assert his supremacy and maintain it by force if necessary. He proclaimed himself as such, and sent an ultimatum to the United States, commanding him to withdraw his troops from Central America. San Salvador, however, did not heed the ultimatum, and requested the recognition in one common nation. Honduras assented, but such strenuous opposition was met in the other two republics that the valiant Barrios determined to accomplish by force what could not be secured by legitimate means. War has been declared, and hostilities doubtless are this being commenced.

Guatemala is the strongest of all the Central American republics. Although second in area, having about 41,000 square miles, it is first in wealth and population, containing 1,500,000 inhabitants, or about as many as all the other Central American republics combined. There are about 1,000 miles of telegraph and 300 miles of railway in operation. New Granada, the capital, has 65,000 inhabitants. The annual revenue of the republic is about $6,000,000. Guatemala exports large quantities of coffee, cochineal and other tropical products. Since 1852 it has had four internal divisions, and has progressed rapidly in civilization. Honduras, whose republic is assested to that of Barrios, is less south and adjoining Guatemala, and contains about 40,000 square miles. Its population is but 300,000. Rafael Zaldívar is president. One small railway less than fifty miles in length comprises the sole claim to civilized enterprise. It is a great internal wealth, but no attempts have been made to develop it. It exports mahogany and other valuable woods in large quantities. The assistance it can give Guatemala will be slight. San Salvador, which by its position almost entirely surrounded by the United States and Honduras, is the scene of the first bloodshed. It is the smallest of the five republics, having but 7,000 square miles, although its population is nearly 400,000. General Dur Bogrín is president. Coffee and indigo are its leading exports. San Salvador, the capital, is a city of 30,000 inhabitants. Nicaragua, in which Americans are more interested than any of the others, is the largest of all, having an area of over 55,000 square miles. Its population is but 300,000, only 20,000 of whom are whites. About 100 miles of railway and 500 miles of telegraph are in operation. Its exports are about $2,000,000 annually and comprise forest products mainly. Dr. Adam Cardeñas was elected president in 1858. Costa Rica, the last and southernmost of the five republics, has an area of 28,000 square miles and 200,000 inhabitants. Coffee is its principal export. A line of railway 100 miles in length connects the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. San José, the capital, has 40,000 inhabitants. Its president is General Don Pedro Fernández.

A conflict between these separate republics would, in the present state of affairs, simply be a series of affrays and massacres. The entire white population of less than 150,000, is scattered and not easily to be concentrated. Over half of the whites are in Costa Rica, and the absence of means of transportation are not likely to enter into the war until it is brought to their doors. This is not likely to be the case, for one very important reason. President Zaldívar of San Salvador, having notified President Diaz of Mexico, of the schemes of Barrios, the latter was immediately notified that any action on his part partaking of a coercive nature, against the under-republics of Guatemala would be regarded as an infringement of the independence of their dominions. This move on the part of his powerful neighbor to the north will be likely to cool the ardor of the ambitious ruler, and lead him to devise other ways and means of accomplishing his desires. There is undoubtedly merit in the plan of President Barrios to unite these republics under one rule. At present they are isolated, torn by internal feuds and revolutions almost constantly, and all attempts at enterprise discouraged by lack of the firm hand and cool head of a man who has some acquaintance with the world. Barrios perhaps possesses these qualifications, and were it not for another master, which is also made public by our dispatches this morning, his attempt to bring about results certainly needed, would be filled up with more favor in the United States.

A report has been sent by Barrios, through his agent at San Francisco and other channels, that the union of these republics under his presidency was called for by the general demand of the people of Central America for speedy completion of the Nicaragua canal. But it has been made apparent that the probability was rather that an unscrupulous adventurer saw in the present and prospective condition of affairs in relation to the canal, an opportunity to make himself a very important personage, get into a position that would enable him to make millions of money, which he could do by playing the Nicaragua scheme against the Panamá scheme, and for the benefit of the latter and himself to defeat the project as entertained by the United States. Our dispatches published today make it clear that this is his object. There is information that he has been actively engaged against the United States, and has been in the present course in order to defeat it. In this he is operating in the interest of the French Panama scheme, and is very likely in it now already. Another dispatch states that senators at Washington declare that the treaty with Nicaragua ought to be ratified at once in order to develop the attitude of France, and further, that a resolution was offered yesterday in the senate, calling upon Secretary Bayard for information regarding the reported attempt of Barrios to destroy the integrity of Nicaragua, and other republics, and to report what steps have been taken by the department of state to preserve our rights under existing and pending treaties.

SOMETHING MORE ABOUT FAIR

Yesterday morning The Oregonian declined to urge upon the holders of capital in Portland the necessity of establishing carriers for putting into marketable shape the enormous quantities of fruit annually left to rot on our orchards and gardens. It would be useless to urge those who refuse to aid struggling industries already established to invest the money in new ones of a similar nature. For several years a fruit cannery has been in operation in East Portland, whose products are caused by all who have used them to be superior to any imported article. These employees are all white persons, and whose proprietors expend thousands of dollars yearly in this city for sugar, tin, hardware and other articles necessary to manufacture and marketing of their products. In the face of great opposition mainly placed in their way by those who should have lent a helping hand, the managers of this cannery have built up a business of moderate dimensions solely by the excellence of their product, and mainly through the retail trade. Although shown the value of its development to the community and the fat profit to be derived by its extension, capital has refused to invest, and as a consequence, an industry that would by judicious investment furnish means of employment to more than 500 persons employed less than 100 in the busier season. This is solely due to the neglect of capital. The large wholesale dealers, who could, were they so inclined, push the sale of these products, handle them only when compelled to by special demand of their own customers. Yet thou-ghs of cases of canned goods of an inferior quality, and second class, have been retailed from eighteen pence and nine pence per mile respectively to twelve and nine pence, per case, which ought to be far above the cost of a half-ton carriage, and the cost of a ton of fruit ordinary takes from ten to fifteen dollars and a half-ton carriage, while the estimation of fourth class was wholly altogether. The reduced rates, which were not approved of by the Bunting government at the time, were in accordance with the scale already in force on the Bunting & Baroda and entered in lines, and have been found to work satisfactorily, due to large increases in the number traveling, especially in third class. This should not, without its moral in the character of the product, be done.

To the stimulation of legislation, however, it is like the one in progress, in view of the success it would have in aiding the movement of the country to the southward. Then the Oregonians felt obliged to say that the author of the article signed "Oregon," referring to the Portland board of trade, who happened in this paper on Monday, March 12, was not Mr. Carlile, the secretary of the Oregon immigration board. The influence of the Oregon immigration board, the head of which is the secretary, that the board is managed for the private gain of the secretary, or any one else, is grossly unjust, unless that paper has something more than hat, or he, or his, or personal dislike, to back it up, is not enough to ascertain the truth. The records of the board are open to public inspection, and in these records appear the names of all who have come to the port of Portland, and of all who have gone. So far as we can learn, the work of the board has been honestly and cleanly done by all respects, and as magnanimous to the contrary appears to be quite unfounded and undeserved.

LITTLE ENDLESS TRUTHS.

It is mentioned as a striking sign of southern pro-slavery that the number of small farms is increasing. The statement is made that there are now, in the small farms in South Carolina, where there were but one or two years since, and the same is true of other southern localities. Two years ago the superintendent of the census said that since 1850 the number of farms in thirteen of the state slave states had increased 55 per cent, and added that "this movement towards the sedentary life of the large plantations is likely, in the absence of capital to carry on extensive operations, to continue until the tenure of the soil shall be relatively even more popular than at the north." If a French professor has remarked, "in a ring of large, medium and small properties, is the most, whether of a rural or urban character, the best guarantee of security."

The dispatches report that President Cleveland recently left with great celerity, and that he never reached his destination in time for his inauguration. Such is the inheritance he received from the grand old republican party. It was not so with Abraham Lincoln twenty-four years ago, when he followed a success on democratic principles.

GRANTS WAR HISTORY

Mark Twain effects a striking change of programme. On Friday evening he gave a lecture on the war to reduce prices. On Saturday evening he gave a lecture on the war to increase prices. On Sunday evening he gave a lecture on the war to end the war. And on Monday evening he gave a lecture on the war to begin the war. The audience at each meeting was composed of a good many men and women, and the lecture was well received. At the first meeting the speaker was received with a hearty round of applause, and at the second with a hearty round of applause, and at the third with a hearty round of applause, and at the fourth
